Alfa Laval continuously evaluates our business sectors to determine their fit with the strategic direction of the organization. This effort has been increasingly important due to the global market pressures caused by the Covid-19 pandemic.

As a result Alfa Laval would like to announce that, effective November 1st 2020, Hygienic Fluid Handling Business Unit will discontinue the Instrumentation portfolio in order to reallocate our focus and resources to our core business.

The Alfa Laval Instrumentation portfolio was built together with high-quality, globally recognized manufacturers of flowmeters, gauges, pressure and temperature transmitters, weighing systems and other analytical instrumentation. The program enjoyed substantial success; however the strategic decision was made that resources required to support continued growth are more effective when allocated to our core business segments.

The Alfa Laval organization wishes to thank our Instrumentation portfolio partners for their support and commitment to innovation, product development and quality.

Our Sales organizations will be available to assist customers in the best way possible during and after the transition.
